

Luke's Visit to the Food Factory

Fill in some, any, somebody/someone, anybody/anyone;
something, anything; somewhere, anywhere:

Before the manager of the food factory took Luke's class into the factory, he looked into their eyes and said with a strict voice:

"Listen, boys and girls. You are the first students in the factory for a year. We didn't let any <sup>(1)</sup> students into our factory, because last year some <sup>(2)</sup> students played a trick on us. They threw some <sup>(3)</sup> old chewing gum into a tin of beans. Someone <sup>(4)</sup> bought this tin and wanted to eat his beans on toast. Suddenly he found something <sup>(5)</sup> hard that wasn't a bean on his plate. He washed the tomato sauce off and held an old hard chewing-gum in his hands. We had to pay him some <sup>(6)</sup> money, so that he didn't say anything <sup>(7)</sup> to the newspapers.

I must tell you something <sup>(8)</sup> else. Two years ago, some <sup>(9)</sup> rich old ladies from America visited our factory. I told them that they must not hold anything <sup>(10)</sup> in their hands. Not any <sup>(11)</sup> woman had anything <sup>(19)</sup> in her hands when we went through the factory. But just before they left, one woman shouted: "I can't see my diamond on my gold ring. It must be somewhere <sup>(12)</sup> It cost me some <sup>(13)</sup> thousand pounds." We went back to the factory and opened all the tins of that day. We looked everywhere, but we didn't find the expensive diamond anywhere <sup>(14)</sup> If someone <sup>(15)</sup> found the diamond in a tin of beans, he or she didn't come to us and protest. Maybe someone <sup>(16)</sup> ate it and still has the diamond in his stomach.

So, when we are in the factory, you must not hold anything <sup>(17)</sup> in your hands. If something <sup>(18)</sup> falls into a tin, we must stop the machines and find it. Look, if someone <sup>(19)</sup> buys a tin of spaghetti in a shop, he must not find anything <sup>(20)</sup> except spaghetti and tomato sauce in it. If someone <sup>(21)</sup> bites on something <sup>(22)</sup> hard like a biro, he may break a tooth. You are the first visitors for a year. Have you got any <sup>(23)</sup> questions? Do you want to know something/anything <sup>(24)</sup> about our food?"

Dave wanted to ask something <sup>(25)</sup> , but Miss Green looked at him with that hard long teacher's look and he didn't ask any <sup>(26)</sup> questions.
