

Lunch at the “Eder Restaurant”

Dad: “A table for four, please.”

Waitress: “Where _____ (1) to sit?”

Dad: “A table _____ (2) the window, please.”

Waitress: “Is that table over _____ (3) fine?”

Dad: “Thank you. T_____ (4) fine.”

Mum: “Can we _____ (5) the menu, please?”

Dad: “Certainly, Madam. Here _____ (6).”

The waitress gives them the menu. All four guests read the menu.

Waitress: “Can I _____ (7) to drink?”

Dad: “Yes, please. I’d _____ (8) a large beer.”

Mum: “The _____ (9) for me.”

Julian: “I’d like to have a _____ (10-Limo), ___ (11 a/an) Almdudler.”

Marlene: “For me an apple _____ (12) with mineral _____ (13).”

The waitress goes to the kitchen and brings them the drinks. She puts them on the table and says:

“_____ (14) you are. Are you _____ (15) to order?”

Marlene: “A pizza with _____ (16), _____ (17), _____ (18), and _____ (19) for me, please.”

Julian: “For me spareribs with _____ (20) wedges, please.”

Dad: “The _____ (21) for me, please.”

Mum: “I’d like to have _____ (22) wings with _____ (23-Pommes) and _____ (24-Ketchup).”

The waitress _____ (25) to the kitchen. Julian _____ (26) with his iPhone and Marlene _____ (27) a picture on a _____ (28) of paper. Their dad _____ (29) a whatsapp to his mum, and his _____ (30) writes ___ (31-a/an) e-mail to a colleague. Twenty minute _____ (32) the _____ (33-Koch) shouts out of the kitchen window:

“Two spareribs, one pizza, and chicken wings.”

The waitress _____ (34) the plates with the food to the table. Now all the Engels _____ (35) happy. Nobody _____ (36-nicht sprechen) a word; they all _____ (37) their food. When all the plates are empty, Dad calls the waitress.

Dad: “Can I have the bill?”

Waitress: “Everything together?”

Dad: “Yes, of c_____ (38)”

The waitress _____ (39) the bill with her little machine and _____ (40) it to Dad. “Dad _____ (41) the bill with his credit card. What a wonderful day.